Dr. B. Manly Shuler.

The angel of death, still hovers over us. It is our sad province to chronicle the death of Dr. B. M. Shuler, which occurred on Thursday evening last. After his long sickness, he, too has been removed from the sphere of duty and sorrow, and sleeps the dreamless sleep whose waking will be with the phantom myriads who have lived before him, and with the loved ones he has but behind him. This announcement of his death will be heralded through the large ourcle of his aequaintance with tears and with sorrow; and in many a happy home will a spirit of mourning brood as friends talk of his frank and genial heart, and of his sunny smile of greeting, so familliar and so loved. With this large group of sorrowed hearts, we mourn in genuine sympathy. Within the home draped in sorrow, in the house of whose portal is heard low echoes of bowed hearts, weeping, we would send a voice of consolation, whose tones are from a the last week,) is about to leave us heart, suddened with their sorrow. Dr. Shuler was too well known, too wellbeloved in his community to need a tribute or eulogy, at our hands. More eloquent, more touching, and more befitting, is that tribute of love and of fore.
